EXECUTIVE DASHBOARD

- Revenue was generated across all four regions, demonstrating nationwide market presence.
- Monthly revenue remained relatively stable throughout 2025, with noticeable peaks indicating periods of stronger sales performance.
- Revenue varied across regions, highlighting opportunities to strengthen performance in lower-performing markets through targeted sales and marketing initiatives.

Revenue by Region (2025)

Revenue Trend by Month

PRODUCT ANALYSIS

- Product categories contributed differently to revenue, profit and units sold, demonstrating that sales volume alone does not determine business performance.
- Some categories generated strong revenue but comparatively lower profitability, emphasising the importance of balancing sales growth with profit margins.
- Comparing revenue, profit and units sold provides valuable insight into which product categories deliver the greatest overall business value.

SALES ANALYSIS

- Sales performance differed across the Online, Retail Store and Marketplace channels, indicating varying customer purchasing behaviours.
- Returning customers generated a significant proportion of revenue, highlighting the importance of customer retention.
- Comparing sales channels alongside customer segments provides valuable insight into where future sales and marketing investments are likely to generate the greatest return.

MARKETING AND CUSTOMER INSIGHTS

- Marketing campaigns contributed positively to both revenue and profitability, demonstrating the value of targeted promotional activities.
- Revenue distribution across sales channels indicates that certain channels outperform others and may present opportunities for additional investment.
- Differences in average discount levels across product categories suggest opportunities to optimise pricing strategies while maintaining profitability.

RECOMMENDATIONS

Ignoring these challenges could mean lost revenue, slower growth, and declining customer trust:

- Increase investment in the highest-performing sales channels to maximise revenue growth.
- Prioritise high-performing product categories while reviewing strategies for underperforming products.
- Strengthen customer retention initiatives to build on the value generated by returning customers.
- Review pricing and discount strategies to improve profitability without negatively impacting sales.
- Continue leveraging Business Intelligence dashboards to monitor performance and support data-driven decision-making.
